You should choose the best answer and mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the center.

Questions 26-30 are based on Passage One:

About three hundred words in the English language come from the names of people. Many of these words are technical words. When there is a new invention or discovery, a new word may be coined after the inventor or scientist.

It is interesting to observe how many common words have found their way into the language from the names of people. Lord Sandwich, who lived from 1718 to 1792, used to sit at the gambling table eating slices of bread with meat in-between. As the lord was the only man among his friends who ate bread in that way, his friend began to call the bread "sandwich" for fun. Later on the word became part of the English language.

The word "boycott" means to refuse to have anything to do with somebody or something. It comes from a man called Captain Boycott. He was a land agent in 1880 and he collected rents and taxes for an English landowner in Ireland. But the Captain was a very harsh man. He treated his poor tenants very badly. His tenants decided not to speak to him at all. Eventually word got back to the landowner and the Captain was removed. The word "boycott" became popular and was used by everyone to mean the kind of treatment that was received by Captain Boycott.

26. When he found out that the tenants were boycotting his land agent the landowner _____.

- A) dismissed Captain Boycott
  - B) praised Captain Boycott
  - C) removed the poor tenants
  - D) increased the rents and taxes

- A) invent
  - B) place

28. Lord Sandwich lived from 1781 to 1792. The word “lord” shows he was _____.
- A) a commander
  - B) a judge
  - C) a nobleman
  - D) a priest
29. Tenants are people who _____.
- A) have no money
  - B) work under a land agent
  - C) work as farmers
  - D) pay for the use of land
30. Which is the best title for this passage?

  - B) The Word of Boycott.
  - C) The Words.
  - D) The Origin of Words.

Questions 31-35 are based on Passage Two:

It is obvious that everyone is different and every child has different abilities. One may be good at mathematics; another may be good at languages. Some children like academic subjects while others prefer to do things with their hands. But there are a large number of educational theorists who disregard this. They insist that all children be equal and so every child must receive the same education. There is little justification for this point of view, and every examination proves it wrong. So the theorists go further and argue that all examinations are bad because it is unfair and socially undesirable for one child to get more marks in a test than another. There is a great deal of hypocrisy (伪善) and self-interest in this argument. All it proves, in my view, is that the theorists are afraid of parents' reactions when their theories are put into practice and shown to be nonsense. It is only natural for parents to want their children to be more successful than others and pass examinations.

Of course it is true that forty or fifty years ago a large number of children were prevented from getting a good education because their parents could not afford it. But the children who suffer nowadays are the exceptionally intelligent ones, because they do not receive individual attention. It is therefore quite clear to me that every child should have the opportunity to learn, but each child should be treated as an individual.

31. A large number of educational theorists agree that _____.
- A) children should be treated differently in education
  - B) children should be treated equally in education
  - C) children should get high marks in examination
  - D) children should not show too much concern for their examination
32. The writer thinks that the present educational system _____.
- A) makes it impossible for most children to pass the examination
  - B) benefits only those children who are least intelligent and least hardworking
  - C) is only recognized and supported by a small number of people
  - D) prevents the children with extremely high intelligence from developing rapidly

33. Which of the following statements is NOT true according to the passage?
- A) Children differ from one another in personal abilities and interest.
  - B) All children do not do well in their examinations.
  - C) Parents do not wish to see the theories work well.
  - D) Being economically well prepared, parents expect their children to receive a better education.
34. It seems that the writer objects to _____.
- A) popular and equal education of children
  - B) popular but not equal education of children
  - C) equal but not popular education of children
  - D) neither popular nor equal education of children
35. The writer's opinion on the present educational system and the educational theories is rather _____.
- A) unthinkable
  - B) critical
  - C) approving
  - D) unreasonable

Questions 36-40 are based on Passage Three:

In the early 18th century, one of the great men of Chinese theater, Master Zhang, moved to Foshan from the capital and set about establishing a distinctive Cantonese operatic tradition, which eventually led to the replacement of Mandarin (普通话) by the local dialect.

In the north Peking opera was very much an entertainment enjoyed by people of high social status, but in the south Cantonese opera became popular with everyone. The merchant class, which had grown rich from international trade, provided valuable fund for the art. Operatic performances became a part of all major festivals, such as the Feast (节日) of the Hungry Ghosts and the Lunar New Year.

For these special occasions temporary stages were set up, with bamboo boards and covered roofs, in temple courtyards and village squares. Everybody came to watch and listen to stories based on well-known myths and legends. The performers belonged to acting families, learning from example and tradition, the complex rules that governed everything that happened on stage. Each movement was meaningful: trembling arms indicated fear, an outstretched palm in front of the face meant tears. The music, often adapted from folk melodies (旋律), was sung according to the role.

36. The passage is mainly about _____.

  - B) the limits of Peking opera

38. Cantonese opera won financial support from _____.

  - B) The success of Cantonese opera contributed to the wide use of local dialect.
  - C) Operas were performed on every festivity occasion.
  - D) The music of the operas were written by famous composers.
40. The stories were usually based on _____.
- A) ordinary people's stories
  - B) famous novels
  - C) stories of ancient China and heroes
  - D) Master Zhang's experiences

Questions 41-45 are based on Passage Four:

There are many famous museums throughout the world where people can enjoy art. Washington, D.C. has the National Gallery of Art (美术馆); Paris has the Louver; London, the British Museum. Florida International University (FIU) in Miami also shows art for people to see. And it does so without a building, or even a wall for its drawings and paintings.

FIU has opened what it says is the first computer art museum in the United States. You don't have to visit the University to see the art. You just need a computer linked to a telephone.

You can call the telephone number of a university computer and connect your own computer to it. All of the art is stored in the school computer. It is computer art, produced electronically by artists on their own computers. In only a few minutes, your computer can receive and copy all the pictures and drawings.

Robert Shostak is director of the new computer museum. He says he starts the museum because computer artists had no place to show their works.

A computer artist can only record his pictures electronically and send the records, or floppy discs, to others to see on their computers. He can also put his pictures on paper. But to print good pictures on paper, the computer artist needs an expensive laser printer.

Robert Shostak says the electronic museum is mostly for art or computer students at schools and universities. Many of the pictures in the museum are made by students. Mr Shostak said the FIU museum would make computer art funnier for computer artists because more people can see it. He says artists enjoy their work much more if they have an audience. And the great number of home computers in America could mean a huge audience for the electronic museum.

41. The main purpose of this passage is to give information about _____.
- A) museums throughout the world
  - B) an electronic art museum in Miami, U.S.
  - C) art exhibitions in Florida International University
